

Identifying Dependency

The seven criteria used to identify whether a person has a dependency problem:

- A stereotyped pattern of consumption; that is, the same drinks with the same people in the same place.
- Drinking or drug consumption taking priority over other activities.
- An increased tolerance with a need to drink more alcohol or take more drugs for the same effect.
- Physical withdrawal symptoms such as hand tremors and sweating.
- Taking a drink or drug to 'feel better'.
- An inability to stop at one or two drinks, or the prescribed drug dosage.
- A rapid return to pre-abstinence level when resuming consumption after a period of abstinence.

For dependency to exist, not all of the above factors need to be present. Some elements may be more evident than others.

Damascus Health Services

Referrer Information

Providing a confidential and flexible approach to the care and treatment of people with alcohol and prescription drug dependency

Damascus Health Services is for:

- Individuals whose use of alcohol and/or prescription drugs is problematic.
- Family members who are in need of support due to an alcohol or drug related problem.

About Damascus

Damascus Health Services is the only private healthcare facility in South East Queensland dedicated to the treatment of people with problems related to the use of alcohol and prescription drugs.

Damascus Health Service staff have developed specific programs to provide patients with the opportunity to solve their problems and to deal with the pressure and demands of everyday life.

The experienced staff at Damascus health Services come from a range of healthcare professions providing a multidisciplinary approach to care and treatment. This has been found to be the most appropriate way of addressing not only the harmful use of, or dependence on, alcohol and prescribed drugs, but also for other related issues such as personal conflict, spiritual needs, marital or family problems, or difficulties with community or work-life.
